Jason Glasrud is Development Manager at CBC Real Estate Group, a real estate development and consulting firm. Since joining CBC in March 2013, Jason has been integrally involved in a number of project management assignments and public sector consulting work.

Most recently, Jason served on the project management team for the Northland Innovation Campus in Gladstone, Mo., – a public-private partnership to develop a new learning environment for North Kansas City Schools and Northwest Missouri State University.

Additionally, Jason has served on the project management teams for the new Joplin Public Library and Lenexa Civic Center projects. He also serves the CBC ownership group on multi-unit, fast-casual restaurant development projects throughout the United States.

Previously, Jason was Chief of Staff to the Kansas Secretary of Commerce. He was primarily responsible for managing the legislative agenda of the agency, as well as the implementation of new initiatives like the Innovation Growth Program, which supports university corporate engagement strategies.

Prior to the Department of Commerce, Jason served as Manager of Sales and Leasing at Hunt Midwest Real Estate Development in Kansas City, Mo.
